

Beyond Pachysandra

at The Frelinghuysen Arboretum
353 East Hanover Avenue
Morris Township, NJ 07962

All gardeners depend on groundcover plants to hold and protect soil, fill in difficult spaces, and add texture and color to the landscape. Rick Ray, longtime college professor in plant identification and uses, takes a ground level approach to wood and herbaceous plants as groundcovers. He looks beyond the conventional trio of pachysandra, ivy, and vinca and shows how plants of all kinds and sizes can serve as groundcovers.
