Friends of The Frelinghuysen Arboretum

— News from The Friends —

Arboretum Annuals Display

The Frelinghuysen Arboretum's captivating display of annuals is supported by a grant from the Friends of The Frelinghuysen Arboretum and designed and implemented by the horticultural display foreman and the gardeners of the Morris County Park Commission. When something goes missing from the design it often throws the entire concept into confusion. This year many difficulties were encountered with the plant orders. Horticultural Display Foreman Kristin Prommel managed to adapt the plan to availability of plants and got the installations done. Thanks Kristin. The annual beds look lovely!

Bulb Sale – Help Fund the Friends' Annual Tulip Planting

The Friends sponsor the extensive tulip planting at the arboretum every year and we will again this fall. We'd like you to help us fund that planting by ordering bulbs this year from Brent and Becky's Bulbs at <http://bloominbucks.com/>. If you order your bulbs there, the Friends will receive 25% of your purchase as a donation. This will go a long way towards funding this years' planting. Further information about the wonderful selection of bulbs is available on our website.

Gingerbread Wonderland Canceled

The Gingerbread Wonderland event is canceled this year with the hope that we will return to an in-person and well-attended platform in the Fall of 2022. The inability to create space between attendees, the many hours of staff time involved, and the need for volunteers, who are only being allowed on a limited basis, all contributed to our decision to postpone this event until next year. We'll come back gangbusters.

Arboretum Named NGB Therapeutic Garden Finalist

The National Garden Bureau (NGB) launched a philanthropic program in 2014 that supports the building and growth of therapeutic gardens across North America. This program furthers NGB's mission of promoting gardening to gardeners and non-gardeners alike. The Frelinghuysen Arboretum has been named a finalist for this year's grant. First place will receive a $3000 grant and second and third places will each receive a $1000 grant. Finalists have been asked to create a video about their therapeutic garden and horticultural therapy programs. The video will be posted in early September for viewing and voting on a favorite garden.

Activity in the Scherer Garden

notes from the board

Dear Friends,

Two of the many enjoyable aspects of my summer garden are the sweeps of Hakone grass that lift their skirts with a gentle breeze and the Teacup Colocasia near my waterfall that fill with water during a rainstorm, tipping downward to empty their contents into the soil below. There's a beauty in the movement, the adjustment to variations in nature, and the evolutionary desire to prevail. The Friends and The Frelinghuysen Arboretum, in the face of pandemic and staff related changes spent this season adjusting and evolving. Here's how:

Our friend and Morris Parks' Manager of Horticulture, Mark Inzano, accepted a job in the private sector and left Morris County Park Commission's employ. The Friends worked well with Mark, will miss him, and wish him well in his new position. With his departure gardener extraordinaire, Kristin Prommel, completed the grant for the arboretum's longstanding and Friends-supported installation of summer annuals. As well, the Morris County Park Commission acted swiftly to post the job opening for the Manager of Horticulture, an essential position for the smooth operations of the three horticulture sites under Morris Parks' stewardship. The opening is scheduled to be filled by the end of September (cross those fingers) and the Friends are delighted that the position was fast tracked to provide consistent community engagement. We work closely with the Manager of Horticulture and the Superintendent of Horticulture Education and look forward to cultivating new and known relationships in our mutual mission to promote The Frelinghuysen Arboretum.

In response to many inquiries regarding a return to in-person programming I can only say that we are as anxious as you are. The loss of a facilities manager, continued developments in the world of COVID 19 and the need for repairs to the Haggerty Education Center has us wondering when the day will come that we are able to share conversation and refreshments in a common space. However, we want to keep you safe so for now, and at least into the beginning of 2022, we will manage programming via Zoom and there are several wonderful programs that might entice you to join us, including Frances Palmer and the popular November Tree Symposium.

We focused this issue of Arboretum Leaves and our 2021 Tree Symposium on the recent work that representatives from the American Conifer Society (ACS), the Morris County Park Commission, and the Friends accomplished this year. The Frelinghuysen Arboretum is honored to be listed as a Conifer Reference Garden through the ACS. The Friends' Secretary, Judy Snow, has written more extensively in a separate article in this newsletter. It's hard for me to express how important it is that three separate organizations came together to get something done that will allow the Arboretum to showcase its collection and get much needed financial help in developing the Conifer Collection in the future. Already we are learning of a hemlock collection that no longer exists. I love hemlocks! Get some new ones? Yes, please!

Visit the Frelinghuysen Arboretum with an eye for viewing the extensive conifer collection and please attend this fall's Tree Symposium to learn about how to select the proper specimen and how conifer's might enhance your own personal landscape.

See you there!

Yours in horticulture,
Heather Emelander

2021 Virtual Tree Symposium

Tuesdays in November

This year we're taking a tour through the magical world of conifers. They're so much more than just Christmas trees! Find out how they can add year-round color, architectural form, and texture to your garden from our expert speakers. Then visit the impressive collection at the Frelinghuysen Arboretum (more than 450 specimens), now designated as a Reference Garden by the American Conifer Society. The variety and beauty of the trees will amaze you.

You may register for each program individually, or sign up for all four programs and get one free. The discounted price for all four programs is $30 for members and $45 for non-members. Then sit back and enjoy all four programs via Zoom from the comfort of your home.

Conifers for Today's Gardens with Bob Iames, Jr.

This program will begin with a brief introduction to the Frelinghuysen Arboretum's conifer collection by Zinnia Cheetham, Plant Records Curator Specialist with the Morris County Park Commission.

Then join Bob Iames, Jr., as he speaks about his passion for dwarf and unusual conifers – he currently cares for more than 400 of these plants! Bob is Groundskeeper at the 173-acre Lange Estate in Ludlow Falls, Ohio, member of the American Conifer Society, Ohio Valley North American Rock Garden Society and current President of the Miami Valley Hosta Society.

Bob's presentation will cover a wide variety of topics, from conifers that change color, to conifers that require no pruning, to conifers for shady areas. He will start with a brief description of conifer species and their cultural requirements. Then he'll focus on the many new varieties and where to find them.

This program is eligible for 1.0 Rutgers Master Gardener CEUs.

Date: Tuesday, November 2

Time: 7:00 pm

Cost: $10 members / $15 non-members

Christie Dustman

Conifers as Living Sculpture with Christie Dustman

Christie Dustman started her landscape design firm, Christie Dustman & Company, 22 years ago, has won design awards, teaches at many venues including the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University and in 2021, her private garden was featured in Fine Gardening Magazine.

Christie's talk will use photos to illustrate the thought process behind why she does what she does, always with a dash of humor. She loves plants, loves satisfying design and loves the feeling of "ahhh – this is just right" in a garden. Her talk will cover conifers as a unique and often misunderstood plant category in the garden. The lecture examines the criteria of "what is a sculpture" and makes the argument that conifers are living sculptures, providing key artistic moments to modern gardens rather than being relegated as blobs of the past.

This program is eligible for 1.0 Rutgers Master Gardener CEUs.

Date: Tuesday, November 9

Time: 7:00 pm

Conifers: Fastigate and Dwarf Types... Anything But Dull! with Robert LaHoff

Robert LaHoff is co-owner of Hall's Garden Center & Florist in Berkeley Heights, NJ, a member of the Union County Board of Agriculture and the New Jersey Nursery and Landscape Association as well as a Lifetime Member of the American Conifer Association. Most recently, Bob received The New Jersey Nursery and Landscape Association's Horticultural Professional of the Year Award for 2019.

Please join us as Bob focuses his discussion on fastigate and dwarf conifers, talks about their usefulness in the landscape, cultural information and the distinction between fastigate and columnar types. Bob will also dispel the myth that all conifers are green. He'll talk about specific cultivars and will help validate these choices in your garden. Common mistakes using larger plant materials will be covered as well as why knowing botanical nomenclature is important to good decision making. Stories of travel, friendship and personal connections to these plant choices will hopefully inspire you to go out and search for your next favorite conifer!

Ted Hildebrant

A Double Feature: Conifer Propagation Overview and What to Look for When Buying Conifers with Ted Hildebrant

Ted Hildebrant will present a pair of mini-lectures, starting with a look at how conifers are propagated. Specific methods, including propagation by seed, cuttings and grafting will be reviewed and will include techniques you can use in your own garden. The second half of the presentation will cover what to check for and pitfalls to avoid when shopping for that perfect conifer for your landscape. You will learn how to tell a good graft union from a bad one as well as get an understanding of any pests or issues to watch out for on your prospective conifer purchase.

Ted Hildebrant is a third generation nurseryman and propagator who grew up at the Hildebrant Nursery in Oldwick, NJ. Ted and his life partner Elly Keyel, own and operate Coldwater Pond Nursery, a specialty woody plant propagation nursery in Phelps, New York.

This program is eligible for 1.0 Rutgers Master Gardener CEUs.

Spotlight on the Arboretum's Conifers

Pop the corks! The Frelinghuysen Arboretum has recently been designated as a Reference Garden by the American Conifer Society (ACS). The Arboretum is the first and only garden in New Jersey to receive the honor, joining just five other gardens in the Northeast. The purpose of the ACS Reference Garden program is to provide public access to a wide variety of conifer collections throughout the United States. The Gardens serve as a place to study and learn about conifers, to provide ideas for using conifers in home gardens, and to educate gardening groups and the general public about growing conifers.

Longtime Friends member Frank Goodhart, a past president of the ACS, first proposed that the Arboretum apply for this designation back in February. Former Garden Manager Mark Inzano and Records Curator Zinnia Cheetham teamed up to prepare the application, and a recent visit by the President of the ACS Northeast Region clinched the approval. Another benefit of becoming a Reference Garden is the opportunity to apply for grants from the ACS to enhance the conifer collection with new plants, maps, signage, or related projects.

The Friends look forward to working with the MCPC garden staff to develop tours showcasing the Arboretum's conifer collections, and to present educational programs on a variety of topics related to conifers. In fact, the upcoming Tree Symposium, scheduled for four consecutive Tuesday evenings in November, will be dedicated to the theme of conifers for today's gardens.

The Frelinghuysen Pinetum

The conifers at the Frelinghuysen Arboretum are spread throughout the gardens, but the largest concentration is in the Pinetum area in the south-west corner of the property. So what is a Pinetum anyway? It is a collection of pines or related conifers (cone-bearing woody and mostly evergreen trees) that are grown together for botanical study. The Frelinghuysen Pinetum can be accessed from trails at the right rear of the parking lot, or from paths descending behind the mansion. Lovely walking trails make a circular loop through the woods and meadow, with regular benches to rest and enjoy the views.

Many of the conifers in the Pinetum were planted in the late 1960's, when Matilda Frelinghuysen began to transform the family property known as Whippany Farm into an arboretum. However, the oldest specimens were planted in the late 1800's and early 1900's when the Frelinghuysen family bought the property and constructed the mansion as their summer home. After the property was donated to the Morris County Park Commission and the Haggerty Education Center (HEC) was constructed, additional conifers were planted by the entrance to the HEC, near Matilda's Cottage, and in the gardens between the parking lot bays. Currently there are 436 total conifers representing 54 individual species and 108 different cultivars. The collection includes many unusual specimens and some champion trees – the largest of their kind in New Jersey. Each tree is tagged with a black laminated plastic label that gives its botanical name, common name, family group, and origin.

Keeping track of all the conifers in the collection is a big task by itself. As the Plant Records Curator Specialist, Morris County Park Commission employee Zinnia Cheetham is charged with this responsibility. She keeps the records not just for conifers, but for all accessioned plants at the Frelinghuysen Arboretum, Willowood Arboretum, and Bamboo Brook Outdoor Education Center! The records include the botanical nomenclature of the plant, source information, accession number, condition, and other maintenance notes. She also uses a handheld GPS device to perform inventories and capture the coordinates for each plant or tree, which are then uploaded into IrisBG, a database designed for botanical collections. From this information, maps can be produced showing the location of any plant, or group of plants, of interest. The plant records are a remarkable resource that will be invaluable in developing tours of the outstanding conifer collection at the Frelinghuysen Arboretum.

Founded in 1983, the American Conifer Society is a nonprofit organization whose mission is to educate the public about conifers, their use in the landscape, and their importance in nature. The ACS maintains the most extensive and comprehensive database of conifers anywhere, including photos, information on growth rates, hardiness, statistics, and historical data. The membership is organized into four national regions, and includes institutional members as well as individuals. Regular meetings, tours, educational programs, and rare plant auctions take place around the country. The organization also awards grants to its Reference Gardens, as well as merit awards to individuals who have made significant contributions to the field of conifer collecting, propagation, education, horticultural research, conservation, or public service. Member benefits also include a quarterly magazine and discounts at participating nurseries. You can learn more about the ACS and become a member at their website: www.conifersociety.org.

—Joan Buck—

The Friends would like to note the passing of Joan Banghart Buck, former President of the Friends and a long-time volunteer and supporter of the organization.

It would be hard to over-emphasize Joan's contributions to the Friends. She was an active member of the Board of Trustees for many years, serving in a variety of positions culminating as President 2004-2008. Along with good friend Nicky L'Hommedieu, she chaired the Blackburn Tea, raising many thousands of dollars to support scholarships for students in the field of horticulture and the natural sciences. Joan was often found handling many different activities at once: mixing a delicious punch for social events, making decisions on financial matters, running meetings, working at the next fundraiser for the Friends. All these were handled with her characteristic efficiency and aplomb.

Joan was a dedicated gardener and member of the Morristown Garden Club. She volunteered with many other local groups as well, including Girl Scouts, Twigs, Candy Strippers and the Washington Valley Historical Association. All those who worked with her valued her significant contributions to those organizations and remember her for her dedication, enthusiasm, fine wit and her always ready smile.

—Jim Snow—

Longtime Friends' member James Taft Snow, known as Jim, passed away at home on November 25, 2020 after a long struggle with dementia. Jim was born in Ithaca, NY and received a BS and MS in horticulture from Cornell University, where he met his wife, Judy.

Jim's 35-year career with the U.S. Golf Association was focused on turfgrass science and management for the golf industry. For the last 21 years at the USGA, he served as the national director of the Green Section and was a leader in fostering partnerships, education programs, and turfgrass research initiatives to make golf courses more sustainable and environmentally friendly.

A new pine tree was recently planted in the southwest corner of the Pinetum in Jim's memory. Pinus koreana 'Silveray' is a large 5-needled, narrowly pyramidal selection of Korean pine with beautiful long silver-blue, twisted needles. It's a handsome, hardy tree that produces cones at an early age, ultimately reaching a height of 30 feet.

Donating a memorial tree is a wonderful way to keep the memory of loved ones alive. The Arboretum garden staff maintain a "wish list" of trees that they would like to add to the garden collections. For more information, contact Kristin Prommel at kprommel@morrisparks.net.
